ABOUT THE TRAINERS

Quadel is a national leader in affordable housing consulting, training, and program management. Since 1975, we have partnered with Public Housing Authorities, state housing agencies, HUD, and private developers to strengthen housing programs that serve low-income families and communities. From Public Housing, Housing Choice Vouchers (HCV), and Moderate Rehabilitation to HUD-subsidized multifamily and tax credit programs, Quadel brings five decades of proven expertise across the industry.

With nearly 200 professionals across offices in Indiana, North Carolina, Arizona, Oregon, New Jersey, Florida, and Tennessee, Quadel combines local presence with national reach. As a privately held firm, we are dedicated to delivering practical solutions, technical assistance, and frontline support that help agencies and organizations meet regulatory compliance while improving outcomes for families in need.

Quadel is especially recognized for the depth and quality of our training programs. Since 1975, we have been the industry's trusted resource for “nuts and bolts” guidance — training more than 20,000 housing professionals over the last decade alone. Our trainers are experienced practitioners who understand the day-to-day realities of housing agencies, and they bring credibility, respect, and insight to every course. Our interactive approach ensures sessions are not just lectures, but engaging discussions supported by individual and group exercises that foster peer learning.

Whether in customized courses or national public training sessions, our goal is always the same: to prepare professionals to return to “real world” challenges with confidence, knowledge, and practical tools. Quadel's success is rooted in our commitment to the affordable housing industry and our mission to strengthen communities by elevating the skills and capacity of those who serve them.
